Daniel Herrera

Kokomo High School Class of 2019 Salutatorian Daniel Herrera received scholarship offers from the University of Evansville, Valparaiso University, Butler University, and Indiana University Bloomington before deciding to attend Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis, where he has signed to play soccer. Daniel, the son of Holly and Daniel Herrera, plans to pursue a degree in either Business Management or Entrepreneurship, with hopes of playing professional soccer and owning his own business. The National Hispanic Scholar is a member of the KHS Business & Engineering Club, which developed an app and data collection device to help kidney dialysis patients. The International Baccalaureate Diploma Program candidate had the opportunity to travel with other Kokomo Schools students to Chile, "which allowed me to become immersed in some of my own culture, as I have some Chilean heritage," and to China, "which was a wonderful and eye-opening experience that would be difficult to replicate in the classroom." The Future Business Leaders of America member played in the U.S. Soccer Development Academy for four years, was a U.S. National Team Training Center participant, and competed in many U.S. Soccer national showcases.
